

LAKE COUNTY FREE EMPLOYMENT BUREAU TO OPEN THIS WEEK

Institution Made Possible by McDonough's Bill to Begin Business

Lake county's first free labor employment bureau with headquarters at Waukegan is expected to begin business this week at 129 Lake street in the county seat city.

The bureau, which will be maintained by the Illinois Department of Labor, was made possible through the efforts of Representative Lee McDonough, who obtained the passage of the bill through the state legislature providing an appropriation of $14,430.00 for its maintenance. Many stormy sessions and months of labor on the part of Representative McDonough and his fellow legislators were required before the project became a reality.

The bureau will extend free employment service and information to all of Lake county, likewise serving as representative of all industries, commercial institutions, breeders, farmers and others who employ workers in any capacity. The bureau will have three employees and office hours will be from 7 a. m., until 5 p. m.

"It should be understood that the bureau is a Lake county institution and that it will co-operate with all employers and those who seek employment in the county", Representative McDonough said today.

Everything is all set for the opening of the bureau, according to McDonough, and the doors will be opened just as soon as the state administration sees fit to name the personnel of the office.

Following an erroneous report that the bureau had opened a few days ago, 185 applications were received.

Fills Long Felt Need
The first free labor employment bureau was established in Waukegan in 1925 by the Waukegan and North Chicago Chamber of Commerce. Frank T. Fowler, then secretary and manager of the Chamber, realized the need for a bureau that would centralize employment in the city, simplifying the employment problems of employers and providing efficient service for the unemployed.

The employment department of the chamber grew in scope and importance with each year until it became one of the most important of the chamber. It likewise, because of the many demands made upon it, became an expensive one.

CHattel PROPERTY VALUED AT $25,000 IN LEHMANN ESTATE

Trust Fund Left By Father Estimated To Be Eight Million Dollars

Chattel property valued at $25,000 was shown and a bond of $50,000 was approved in letters of administration in the estate of Ernest E. Lehmann, Lake Villa, which were issued Monday by Judge P. L. Persons in probate court to Mrs. Clara A. Lehmann, widow.

The trust fund left by August Lehmann, father of the deceased, was not brought into the proceedings. This amount is estimated to be close to $8,000,000 and William R. Behanna, of Runyard and Behanna, stated that Ernest Lehmann's income was on more than $1,000,000 of that sum.

Letters of guardianship of Ernest, Jr., were issued to the mother with a bond of $300,000 being approved.

Later a petition asking that the income from the trust fund go to the widow and child will be filed, Mr. Behanna declared.

Antioch People Enjoy Brownsville Attractions

Among the Antiochians who are now in Brownsville, Texas, enjoying the citrus groves and other attractions the winter resort has to offer are: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Selzer, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pasko and son, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pregener, and Louis and Isabel Pregener. Mr. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, Lake Villa, are also there.

Lad Honored for Trying to Rescue Bird

Ten-year-old Bud Viera of San Francisco, who was shot in the back by a companion while trying to rescue a wounded sea gull last December, was rewarded for his bravery and kindness to animals when John Partridge of the S. P. C. A. presented him with an especially cast bronze medal as a token of the society's appreciation of his act, at the San Francisco hospital where he is recovering from the bullet wound.

Bill Posting Forbidden On Illinois Highways

Posting of bills on Illinois highways is strictly forbidden, according to E. G. Flannagan, patrolman of highway 21. "Farmers throughout this section of the country spend money for the printing of auction bills and time putting them up and then they are torn down the next day", the patrolman declared yesterday in commenting upon the situation. This same statement is also applicable to the politician.

SEVEN CANDIDATES FILE PETITIONS FOR ASSEMBLY HONORS

Others May Seek Representative Posts From 8th District

Certainty that at least seven candidates will seek assembly honors from the eighth senatorial district was indicated this week following reports from Lake, McHenry and Boone counties that comprise the district.

Incumbents Are Candidates
Representative Lee McDonough, Waukegan, and Representative Richard J. Lyons, Mundelein, were among the first to file their petition for reelection with Secretary of State William J. Stratton at Springfield. A third Lake county candidate is Mrs. Grace Baird, Waukegan.

McHenry county, without representation at Springfield the last session of the legislature, will furnish at least two candidates—William Carroll, Woodstock attorney, and Charles Palmer, McHenry county supervisor, who is said to be farmers' choice from that unit of the district. Carroll made the race two years ago but was defeated. McHenry county had four candidates in the field.

Jackson Has Opposition
For the first time in years Representative Noyes L. Jackson will have a Boone county opponent in the primaries. The aspirant who seeks to succeed Jackson is John Fair, Belvidere, former Boone county sheriff and also a state employee in the division of pardons and paroles during the Len Small regime.

It is rumored that Lake county may have two other candidates for the lower house. They are: Charles Hummer, Lake Bluff attorney, and Fred Galliger, formerly a Methodist minister, Waukegan. If these two enter the race the eighth district entries will total eight.

There were thirteen candidates for representative in 1928.

Prin. and Mrs. W. C. Petty attended a card party at Diamond Lake on Friday night.

ROBBERS TAKE $2,000 WORTH OF LOOT FROM LAKE BLUFF HOME

Winston Home Is Ransacked by Chicago Group, Believed

$2,000 worth of loot, including several expensive fur coats was secured by burglars when they entered the Hampden Winston home on Lake Bluff during the past few days. Several articles of considerable value still remain in the home, however.

The Winston home is located on the Shore Acres Country club ground outside the Lake Bluff village limits. The robbery was reported to Chief Eugene Spald of Lake Bluff, who later made an inspection of the place, but he states this latest burglary is not within his jurisdiction and therefore must be handled by the sheriff's office.

Crime Hard to Solve
Due to the fact that the robbers hauled their loot into Chicago several days before investigation started, the crime is practically impossible to solve, law enforcement officers aver. Similar crimes in the county during the winter have never been solved due to this same reason, it is pointed out. Lake county authorities, hope, however, that co-operative efforts with the Chicago police force will result in the discovery of the identity of the ring of looters responsible for this series of robberies.

LAKE COUNTY MEN MEET TO DISCUSS ANNUAL FAIR PLANS

Conference To Be Held At Libertyville, Saturday, February 8th.

Formation of plans relative to the establishment of an annual Lake county fair will be the big feature of a conference of the leaders in agricultural and farm production affairs in this county, which will be held in the rooms of the Libertyville and Mundelein Chamber of Commerce in Libertyville at 7:30 o'clock in the evening on February 8.

Plans will be outlined as to the nature and scope of the annual exposition, the place of holding and the dates of the event and other matters pertaining to details of the affair. Among those who are interested in furthering this project are: C. L. Kutil, Antioch; Frank Gripton, Grange; and H. C. Glickerson, Gravelake.

STATE'S ATTORNEY SMITH A CANDIDATE FOR U. S. CONGRESS

"A. V." Enters Race for Seat in Congress From 10th District

State's Attorney A. V. Smith's announcement has come. The Lake county prosecutor has definitely decided to make the race for U. S. Congressman from the 10th Illinois district. Col. Smith's announcement was made Saturday, after months of deliberation. He is granted a good chance of winning by those who have conducted an intensive survey of the district, which comprises Lake county and part of Cook, including Chicago's north side.

Service Record Will Help
The candidacy of Col. Smith is looked upon with favor by many service organizations, and his favorable attitude toward legislation for the ex-soldier is expected to prove a major help to him not only among ex-service men but among all voters.

Col. Smith's record as state's attorney and a soldier has kept him in the public eye for the last twelve years. He is now serving his third term as county prosecutor. He has directed the prosecution of internationally famous cases, including the historic Len Small embezzlement case, and conducted the investigation of the jury bribery charges that landed the defendants in jail.

Began Military Service in 1904

His record as a military figure began in 1904 when he organized Battery C of the Illinois National Guard. He was a major in the First Illinois Field Artillery on the Mexican border during the disturbances there before America entered the World War.

With the rank of Lieutenant Colonel of Delly's Bucks he participated in five major battles of the World War: Lorraine, the second battle of the Marne, Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel, and the Argonne.

TWENTY CARLOADS OF HORSES TO BE AUCTIONED FRIDAY

Hundreds of Stockmen to Attend; A. B. C. Gives Complimentary Dinner

Hundreds of stockmen from all parts of the central and eastern states will congregate here tomorrow to be present at Trevor, Wis., for the first auction sale of the Wisconsin Horse & Dairy Cow Sales. Twenty carloads of horses will be sold by Col. Fred Reppert, one of the leading live stock auctioneers of the United States. Buyers from New York, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Galesburg, Milwaukee and Chicago will be among the big bidders.

Dinner for Stockmen Tonight
A complimentary dinner in honor of Col. Reppert, Ed. S. DeLancey, manager of the market, and the visiting stockmen will be given tonight at the Antlers Hotel at 7 o'clock. Soo railroad officials will also be guests at the dinner.

Public Service Company Revenues Increase 12.9 Per Cent In Year 1929

Operating revenues of the Public Service company of Northern Illinois amounted to $33,329,810 during the fiscal year ending December 31, 1929, according to the company's annual report issued to stockholders this week. This is an increase of 12.9 per cent in the operating revenues compared with 1928. After deducting operating expenses, the net operating revenues are shown to be $12,965,337.

During the year 1929 the company gained 21,611 new customers, which raises the total served to 437,928. Service, including all classes rendered, is being supplied to 311 communities, as compared with 302 at the close of 1928.

The report states that the company's electric service was extended to twelve additional communities during 1929 and gas service to two. More than fifty Northern Illinois towns completed the installation of new or improved street lighting facilities during the year.

Total 1929 sales of electricity were

Principal Petty Rep- resents State Normal University at Meeting

Upon a request made by Dean Schroeder of Illinois State Normal University, Prin. W. C. Petty went to Highland Park to represent his alma mater, Illinois State Normal university, at a meeting held there at the Deerfield-Shields High school Saturday.

The purpose of this assemblage was to give the students information as to the advantages offered by various colleges and universities throughout the country. Among the institutions of learning which were represented at this meeting are: Harvard, Cornell, Bryn Mawr, Princeton, Purdue, Smith, Swarthmore, Chicago, California, Notre Dame, Vassar, Wellesley, and Yale.

SUB ZERO WEATHER HAS RUINED STATE FRUIT PROSPECTS

Department of Agriculture Expresses Fear That Loss Will Be Heavy

Sub-zero temperatures of the last two weeks, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson was informed yesterday by the department of agriculture, virtually have ruined Illinois' prospects for a fruit crop this year.

The department based its conclusions on a survey of the peach belt by Joe W. Cummins, chief fruit inspector, for Director Clarence F. Buck.

While the department hesitated to fix the amount of the loss in dollars and cents, it pointed out that the peach growers of the state received approximately $1,800,000 gross, for the 1929 crop. Last year's crop was exceptionally heavy, but the price was low.

Fear was also expressed by the department of agriculture that the extreme cold weather has killed some of last year's growth of peach trees, and reduced the apple crop prospects in certain sections. Temperatures ranged from minimums of 15 to 24 below zero.

In some instances, farm advisers estimated that eighty per cent of the peach buds have been killed.

Reports by counties follow:
Union county: E. A. Bierbaum, farm adviser, reported eighty per cent of buds killed.

Clinton county: W. A. Cope, farm adviser, reported "Expert peaches a total loss".

Williamson county: Dee Small, farm adviser, stated reports from growers throughout county indicate a total loss.

Marion county: Fred J. Blackburn, farm adviser, stated the cold wave temperature ranged from 16 to 24 below, and, that in his opinion, ten below would have been fatal to the peach crop because of the swelling of the buds before Christmas. He also expressed the fear that much of last fall's growth of peach trees was killed, and that there probably was considerable damage to the apple buds in that county.

Jackson county: S. C. Chandler, farm adviser, reported he cut into 200 buds and found only one that he thought might live. H. H. Lamar, superintendent for the American Fruit Growers, at Cobden, reported a total loss.

SHUNNESONS ENJOY CALIFORNIA TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Shunneson write from San Francisco, California, that enroute to the West the roads and weather were very good. They went via the Apache Trail, Coolidge and Roosevelt dams, Mt. Lone, and Catalina Island, across which they hiked. On Jan. 26, they left Pasadena for a shore drive to San Francisco and Oakland. Before returning home they plan on spending a short time in Mexico.

City Briefs

Word was received here that Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Radtke arrived in Texas safely and are enjoying the fine climate down there.

A regular meeting of the Channel Lake Parent-teachers' association was held at the school house Tuesday night. There were about 25 in attendance.

well over a billion kilowatt-hours and gas sales for the same period amounted to nearly 7 1/2 billion cubic feet.

CANDIDATES FILE PETITIONS FOR 7 COUNTY OFFICES

Three County Posts Will Be Contested; Five Out For Sheriff

Definite opening of the campaign for Lake county offices was marked Monday with the filing of the candidates' petitions with County Clerk Lew A. Hendee. Owing to differences of opinion regarding the legality of allowing candidates to file on Saturday, Feb. 1, Clerk Hendee held all petitions up until Monday. State candidates were permitted to file at Springfield Saturday. The last day for filing will be February 17.

Primaries April 8
A candidate for county judge, sheriff, probate judge, county clerk, probate clerk, treasurer and county superintendent of schools will be nominated by Lake county Republicans on April 8.

It has been announced that the Democratic party, long inactive in Lake county, will come out with a full ticket for the various county offices and also for members of the legislature.

Antioch Man a Candidate

Local color is given the primary campaign through the fact that Wm. C. Petty, supervising principal of the Antioch schools, is a candidate for county superintendent of schools, opposing T. A. Simpson, who has held that office for nearly a quarter of a century. The local man's candidacy is growing in favor throughout the county, according to reports coming to his backers, while his opponent is making every effort to rebuild political fences that had fallen into disuse through lack of opposition in the years gone by. The incumbent's supporters, it is reported, are resorting to all known modern and old time political tactics in an effort to stave off defeat that, at this early date, seems imminent for the veteran office holder.

Sheriff—Lucrative Post

There are five candidates for sheriff. H. A. Doolittle, the candidate of the present administration. Supervisor Edward A. Brown, Round Lake; Chief of Police Lester Tiffany, Lake Forest; Edwin Ahlstrom, Waukegan, ex-sheriff; and Elmer J. Green, Waukegan, ex-sheriff and former warden at Joliet penitentiary, are all in the race.

Persons To Have Opponent

County Judge P. L. Persons, who has held office since 1910 when he succeeded the late Judge DeWitt L. Jones, will be opposed by Attorney Charles E. Jack, town clerk of Waukegan township for a number of years, who made his debut in county politics eight years ago against Probate Judge Martin C. Decker.

Many Lake Co. Rural Pupils Are Defective, Nurses' Exam. Reveals

Announcement was made here today that of the 1,292 children examined in 18 rural schools by Miss Theda Waterman, head nurse of the Lake County Tuberculosis association and Mrs. Katherine Foll, assistant nurse, 891 defects of various kinds were discovered. More than half of the children showed defects of the teeth, while almost 500 of them revealed nose and throat ailments. Corrections have been effected in 635 of the cases. In all, 31 schools have been visited since the new records were begun.

LINCOLN, THE GREATEST AMERICAN

By common consent, Abraham Lincoln is coming to be regarded as America's greatest man. Lincoln was one of those men who belonged to no age—one of the very few universal figures applicable to all times.

Lincoln's own generation did not appreciate him because it could not comprehend the universality of his views, it could not understand his sympathy even for the enemy which he was trying to overthrow. It could not comprehend how a man, so distinctly of the common people, could fill a place of prominence and do it well. Some trembled to think what should become of the ship of state while he guided it through the troubled waters. A member of his cabinet wrote him a letter shortly after he became president in which he frankly said that Lincoln was not fit to be president, that his nomination and election had been a great mistake, and that for the sake of the country he ought to permit another to control the policies which he kept in the background. Doubtless there were many who felt that the president was incompetent, because they did not comprehend the real capacity of the man and his ability to see beyond the passing moment. They saw only the present; Lincoln visioned the ages, and we appreciate him because we see little of what his great mind grasped.

Had he lived, the history of the reconstruction would have been vastly different, for he was a friend of the South as well as of the North. Often was he condemned for sparing the life of a soldier, sentenced to pay the death penalty, but he preferred the condemnation to the thoughts of being instrumental in causing a death that he could prevent. Army officers declared that his pardoning authority was weakening the morale of the army, but it was strengthening the morale of the nation, which he recognized as of far greater importance.

What made Lincoln what he was? It was the sympathy which came from a true understanding of the aches and pains and the throbbings of the human heart. He saw far down beneath the surface.

Abraham Lincoln saw the anguish of the slave; he felt the cry of suffering that rose from thousands of lips. He understood and interpreted the thoughts and feelings of humanity—that is why he belongs so distinctly to the ages.

It is a common practice in painting a character sketch to attempt to show the character in perfection. This is a sad mistake. No one is perfect. Everyone has his faults and his imperfections, and it is not assuming a disrespectful attitude or making a disrespectful statement to say that Abraham Lincoln was not perfect. He was a man with man's limitations, and he was a greater man not because of his limitations, but because his strong limitations overcame those that were weak.

There were many obstacles in his way and few opportunities. He looked upon the obstacles as a challenge, which he accepted and conquered by the sheer force of his will. The schools in the community where he lived had little to offer, but he gained from life a richness of experience and struggled to learn what he could from such books as came into his possession. He didn't hesitate to make use of such opportunities as he had, though he doubtless often wished that they were better. That he had ambition is unquestioned, otherwise he would not have struggled to make advancement in life. He wanted high position and sought for it. He was ambitious for advancement, but not once would he sink to the level of degrading his character to win praise from the people or command their votes. He was himself at all times.

Leaders of all parties are united in showering praise upon our first martyred president; all people unite in honoring his name, a name that stands high in the annals of American history—yes, of the history of the world. The world honors the name of Lincoln, recognizing him as a man, the type of which is as rare as his motives were sincere.

Lincoln lives today in the hearts of the people, for his sympathy was for humanity; his kinship was with mankind of all generations.

LOCAL CITIZENSHIP AND PATRIOTISM

During the last great national political campaign the American public was stirred by campaign speeches touching upon the subject of citizenship and patriotism, and some one has humorously remarked that the patriotism of the American people lies dormant except in time of war, political campaigns, and the Fourth of July. Judging by the indifference of many people to that great privilege of citizenship—the ballot—there would seem to be a grain of truth in this.

An examination of the records of local elections held during the past few years in Antioch discloses the fact that a great many of our citizens have not exercised their right to vote on matters of importance to this community. In order to insure a completely representative local government every citizen should be a voter. (If we were not allowed to vote, what a coveted privilege it would be.)

Every citizen of Antioch has a voice in whatever affects the general good. Each man's opinion carries weight if he will but take the trouble to express it. By his "yes" or "no" he can help to promote the welfare of his community.

Like charity, good government begins at home. If each town would intelligently consider its local problems and solve them by popular vote the nation as a whole would advance in mighty strides.

Let us practice the higher principles of patriotism and citizenship through an awakened interest in local affairs. There is really no good reason why Antioch should not enjoy the enviable reputation of having over 95 per cent of our eligible voters registered and placing their ballots in the ballot boxes at all local elections.

1929 BUSINESS HIGHEST ON RECORD

Measured by quantities, the output of our manufacturing industries in 1929 broke all previous records, being eight per cent higher than in 1928, according to the Secretary of Commerce in his New Year's Message. Employment was larger than ever before.

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY ADDS

TO CAREFULNESS
It seems to be consensus of informed opinion that financial responsibility laws rather than compulsory automobile insurance will promote discipline among motorists and reduce the number of accidents on highways.

CERTAINTY OF PUNISHMENT BEST

Warden Lewis Lawes of Sing Sing Penitentiary, recently said that the famous New York Baumes Laws, which automatically give a criminal life-imprisonment on his fourth conviction for a felony, have failed to decrease crime.

According to Warden Lawes they have resulted in a sort of arbitration between the criminal and officials, as the latter have found it exceedingly difficult to obtain a conviction when the fourth crime is a minor one.

Many experts hold that severity of punishment and superfluous laws defeat their own ends, whereas certainty of punishment is feared by the criminal.

We do not need more laws, or more severe punishments. But we do need machinery to speedily enforce basic laws, uncontaminated by politics.

Crime legislators should turn their attention to providing methods for apprehending and punishing criminals instead of passing volumes of new laws which continually restrict the rights of the law-abiding citizen, thereby making more "technical law-breakers".

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

The country newspaper is becoming more and more a community newspaper—the community in the sense that towns and smaller cities from one to five thousand population are gradually spreading into the rural regions.

The rural and interurban population have so much in common, with the telephone, rural mail, parcel post and better highways, that they are more like one big neighborhood.

More farmers are building homes in towns and smaller cities to give their children the advantages of high schools, colleges and business opportunities.

In all lines of social development the community newspaper is paying its part and is becoming a more valuable property from an advertising standpoint and as a leading factor in the co-operative growth of city and country.

THE LIFE SAVING CAMPAIGN

Accident prevention is not something that can be applied from without. It is within the personal jurisdiction of every citizen.

During the past decade the accident record in industry has been greatly decreased. Part of this is due, of course, to mechanical safeguards. But the greater part of the credit must go to the fact that industrial executives, through education and example, have given workers a knowledge of the accident problem that makes them avoid and remove hazards.

We would have practically no automobile accidents if all drivers were competent, careful and law-abiding. It is the reckless or careless driver who is responsible for the 21,000 deaths caused annually by automobiles in this country.

At the present time the progressive schools of the nation are adopting accident prevention courses as part of their curricula. A sense of personal responsibility for accidents is instilled into the child to develop the "life saving" instinct.

Adult Americans should benefit from the safety training the schools give their children and understand that accident prevention is more a personal than a legislative accomplishment.

The Awakening!

BEFORE AND AFTER

TAKING A NAP AT THE STEERING WHEEL.

THE STILL SMALL VOICE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Captain Flannery, the arrogant police officer in Earl Derr Bigler's story

"Behind That Curtain," was a great booster. He was the sort who said much and did little, who made many promises and fulfilled few of none of them.

"How loud is the thunder, how little it rains," was the comment of Chan, the modest but shrewd Chinese postman who had succeeded in unraveling more mysteries than Flannery had ever gotten started upon.

His remark recalled vividly a common experience of my childhood—dark clouds rolling up most menacingly in the northwest so thickly that the whole prairie was enshrouded in semi-darkness; lightning flashing, heavy thunder reverberating through the air; animals running to cover to escape the approaching storm; fear of an awful downpour of rain gripping me, and then nothing but wind and a little dust in the air! "How loud is the thunder; how little it rains!"

Elijah, you will remember, was to have an audience with the Lord. And he went out and stood. A fierce wind came and tore up trees and piled great rocks one upon another, and tore the mountains to pieces. And after the wind an earthquake and thunder and lightning and great commotion, but the Almighty did not reveal Himself in these things. It was when silence fell over the earth that Elijah heard the sound of the still small voice. Sunshine is noiseless; the waves of the ocean make little sound; the current of electricity running through the copper wire cannot be heard; and the strongest, most influential, most efficient men seldom do much talking.

One of the world's famous multi-millionaires is quoted recently as saying that the way to get on in the world is to work hard, save your money and keep your mouth shut. Talking too much and too loudly is an indication of a rather thin coating of gray matter on the brain. Silence is far more ominous than noise. Composure, a quiet manner, the absence of boasting and bluster are generally indicative of strength. The man who says the least is often thinking the most deeply. It is the deep water that is the quietest.

The most successful, the most influential man in his power over other men whom I have ever known had the quietest voice, the most self-controlled manner which I have ever observed in a man. You would see him in a group of men excited over some serious situation or problem which had arisen, and while the others were shouting and gesticulating, and becoming more and more disturbed and upset, he would be quite composed. Then, in a soft voice, he would make a suggestion which cleared up the muddle and solved the difficulty. He seldom made a speech of any sort, but he directed legislation, he steered committees and organizations out of rough waters into smooth seas. There was little thunder about him, but a quiet beautiful refreshing shower of rain.

MOST PEOPLE HAVE A FAMILY CIRCLE

They have relatives living in other places—some near, some far. And they keep family ties alive... by telephone. It is very easy to make out-of-town calls and it certainly is a pleasant way to keep in touch with your "folks."

Sons and daughters away at school... perhaps an older son working his way to success in another city... your own parents, still living in the home of your childhood... dear friends moved away... all of them are as near as your telephone.

Some persons set aside a certain hour each week for telephone calls like these, which mean so much. From the quiet of their own homes they telephone those they wish might be with them. Try it yourself. You will be repaid for the small cost many times over.

On calls to points approximately 60 to 300 miles distant the station-to-station day rates have been reduced recently in amounts which will mean a saving of more than $5,000,000 to telephone users of the United States.

Old Eagle Eye Says--

No, Antioch hasn't a new butcher, although upon entering C. A. Powles' market on Lake street, one would be inclined to believe so. A change has taken place there, though, but won't say whether or not it was an improvement, because Old Eagle Eye was not consulted about it before hand. The reason for it is not known, but after about 30 years, Mr. Powles has shaved off his mustache.

Old age wouldn't declaim so much about the changing world if it would only stop and consider that the eternal femme has not changed much since the days of Eve, who was the first of her sex to complain that she hadn't a thing to wear.

Drag out your golf sticks, swimmin' suits, thermos bottles, and what not, because Her Majesty is just around the corner, according to Monsieur Groundhog.

Now that the old groundhog really didn't see his shadow, Antioch men can throw away their switchman's caps and go back to John B. Stetson.

This cold winter has made all the automobile owners feel like throwing their cars away and buying horses. One doesn't have to start a horse beyond making a gentle clucking sound in the throat. More power has been expended pulling up on cranks than is usually necessary to build a pyramid or two. Then, too, if all the cuss words that have been uttered in Antioch this winter were laid end to end they would form a double track from here to Chicago with two or three horseshoe turns thrown in for good measure.

If Old Man Winter doesn't loosen up pretty soon Old Eagle Eye thinks there will be an outbreak of paper doll cutting in Antioch that will dwarf previous ones by a wide margin.

The News office, in at least one way, bears a close resemblance to the famous coffee shop of Joseph Addison's time—it is not infrequently the gathering place for the intelligentsia and near intelligentsia of Antioch. Sometimes they get into such heated arguments they almost have a chance to maintain the conventional orientation of their bones and then again they merely wordily about non essentials.

WHY NOT THINK?
It's a little thing to do,
Just to think.
Anyone, no matter who,
Ought to think.
Take a little time each day
From the minutes thrown away—
Spare it from your work or play—
Stop and think!

You will find that men who fail
Do not think.
Half the trouble that we see,
Trouble brewed for you and me,
Probably would never be
If we'd think.

Shall we, then, consider this?
Shall we think?
Shall we journey hit or miss?
Or shall we think?
Let's not go along by guess,
But rather to ourselves confess
It would help us more or less,
If we'd think!

HintsIs It Tomatoes Or Tomatoes?

How do you pronounce it? "Sure it's tomatoes," says the Irishman. "Don't ye ate 'em?" And the packers of canned tomatoes are inclined to agree with him even if they don't quite agree with his etymology. The dictionaries, too, recommend this pronunciation, and define the word as "the pulpy edible fruit of a familiar plant of the nightshade family, highly esteemed as a vegetable, or the plant itself."

However you pronounce it, you like to eat it, so here are some of the latest recipes for making tomatoes taste especially good:

Stewed Tomatoes with Toast Cubes
Turn the contents of a No. 2½ can of tomatoes, three-fourths teaspoon salt, three tablespoons sugar, one and one-half teaspoons onion juice and one tablespoon minute tapioca into a sauce pan, and stew gently for 15 minutes. Add one tablespoon butter and turn out into serving dishes. Meanwhile, butter two thick slices of bread on both sides, cut in small cubes and brown in a hot oven or under the broiler flame. Drop several cubes on top of each serving, and serve at once. Serves six.

Scalloped Tomatoes, Scotch Style
Bring to boiling the contents of a No. 2 can of tomatoes, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, and a few grains of pepper. Add one-half cup quickcooking rolled oats, and pour into a buttered baking dish. Cover the top with buttered crumbs, and bake in a hot—375 degrees—oven for thirty to forty minutes. Serves six.

PAYING ONE'S DEBTS

My father's youthful ambition, while living as he did in the north of England, was to come to America where, as he thought, there would be freedom and a better opportunity for getting on in the world. He was thirty-five years old before he had amassed enough to pay the passage of the family and have enough of a balance to establish himself in a new country.

Coming across the ocean in a sailing vessel, as was done eighty years ago, he came into contact with a young preacher, who, like himself, was seeking a greater opportunity in a new country. The minister had not been as frugal as father; he had saved little and on the way over he fell sick, and was without resources to buy himself and his family food. Father's heart was touched and when they landed he advanced the man the one hundred dollars which he had saved for an emergency. It seems a small sum, but it was a fortune to father, for it was practically all he had. They went in different directions from New York. Father never heard from him again. He was the sort of man of which we have so many—he did not take his debts seriously.

John D. Rockefeller, the richest man in the world today, perhaps, if not the richest who has ever lived, says that the thing which first caused him to get a financial start was his habit of always meeting his obligations. "Pay your debts" was the slogan which marked his road to prosperity and affluence.

I was sitting in the office of a banker friend of mine not long ago, when a man came in to ask for a loan. I knew something of his circumstances. He owned a good deal of property and so far as I knew it was not in any way encumbered. He was looked upon as a man in better than good financial standing. It was five hundred dollars he wanted, I think.

"I am sorry," the banker said, "but we are not in a position to let you have the money at this time."

The man went out, and shortly afterward a farmer came in and made the same request. He explained to my friend that he had little but his own word to offer as security. "We are very glad to let you have the money," the banker said. "I know about you; you pay your debts." He turned to me.

"You were surprised, possibly, that I did not let Black have the five hundred dollars for which he asked, knowing as you do, how much property he owns. It would always be possible to collect from him, but any one who lends him money generally has to force a collection. No one who knows him will lend him anything, for he pays his debts only when he has to do so. This last man is poor, but he is honest. He always manages some way or other to meet his obligations. We are always glad to do business with him."

A Modern Meat Pie
That Will Tempt You

In medieval days, before the invention of forks, meat pies used to be made in huge sizes and eaten with the fingers. This custom is referred to in Robert Browning's rousing poem "Marching Along" in the lines: "Cavallars up! Lips from the cup, Hands from the pastry, nor bite take nor sup."

Till you're
Marching along fifty score strong,
Great hearted gentlemen, singing
this song."

Today we are more individualistic, and not only eat our meat pies with forks, but frequently have a small one all to ourselves. A meat pie that might tempt you to eat with your fingers even nowadays, if no one were looking, is the following one:

Beef and Vegetable Shepherd Pie
Cook one-half cup chopped onion and one-half cup chopped parsley in three tablespoons butter for about three minutes. Combine the liquors from an 8-ounce can of sliced carrots and a 10½-ounce can of stringless beans, and add sufficient water to make one cup. Smooth two tablespoons flour with this mixture, and add slowly to the first mixture, stirring until thick and smooth. Add one and one-half cups evaporated milk slowly, and cook again till thick. Season to taste, add the contents of one 12-ounce can of roast beef cut in cubes, and pour into a baking dish. Top with fluffy seasoned mashed potatoes, and bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for fifteen to twenty minutes. This serves from five to six.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

A LITTLE raw tomato juice is excellent for removing unsightly stains from the hands, caused by paring vegetables. Lemon juice can be used for the same purpose.

If your gravies refuse to brown properly, add a teaspoon of burnt sugar diluted in a tablespoon of cold water. You'll be surprised by the delightful golden brown color, and the flavor will be improved, too.

No medicine can take the place of water in its healthful effect upon the human system. At least one glass of water for every fifteen pounds in weight should be drunk by every adult every day.

Although I have entered thousands of homes, I have never made a friend of anyone. I'm sort of like a burglar, I guess, although a burglar gets in and out without people knowing it—if he's lucky. I leave signs of my visit in every home heated with sooty, smoky fuels. Everything I touch is soiled—but I'm getting less and less chances to ruin woodwork, walls, drapes and furniture because folks are using clean WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE—and I can't force my way—or even sneak—into a home heated with this cleanest of solid fuels."

Wise householders are depending more and more on WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE for clean, smokeless heat in their homes. Clean heat is absolutely necessary if home furnishings—and winter time health, too—are to be protected. WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE is a manufactured fuel. In the process of manufacture, every element that causes soot and smoke is removed. Special treatment also makes this ideal fuel dustless. WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE is easy to handle—and it responds readily to draft control. You have—at all times—CLEAN HEAT at the RIGHT TEMPERATURE. Next time you order fuel—ask for WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Love" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 2.

The Golden Text was, "The Lord will command his lovingkindness in the daytime, and in the night his song shall be with me, and my prayer unto the God of my life" (Psalms 42:8).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want" (Psalms 23:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need. It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour, divine Love supplies all good" (p. 494).

We were on the look-out for Mr. Groundhog last Sunday, but didn't see him. All we saw was roadhogs. Don't believe in groundhogs no how.

Just the same. Spring can come as soon as it likes.

An "inferiority complex" is the feeling that comes over a hold-up man when he gets his check at a road house.

After having won the tournament again this year, we don't think that you could accuse the Antioch High school basketball team of being afflicted with any such a thing as an "inferiority complex".

We have some awfully nice Pocahontas Coal now. In both the egg and nut sizes. This coal is chemically treated for dust, which means that we can put it in your basement without sending a cloud of dust and smudge all through your house. And that means something. Just ask your wife.

One of our Antioch-Chicago commuters who lives down here on Fox Lake, was in such a hurry the other morning that he looked at the hole in the doughnut and dipped his watch in the coffee. A minute later he threw a bone at his wife and kissed the dog goodbye.

Many a mother's lamb nowadays is only a black sheep in a coon's skin.

Will the statistician who says that the average life of a car is seven years please tell us what make his is?

Are you proud of your floors? You see your old marred floors every day, but seldom think about them. What do you suppose your friends think about you for tolerating them?

When you find out how little it costs to have real pretty floors, you'll be sorry you have not had them before. Ask us.

One of our contemporaries reasons thus on the proposition of Chicago being a tough city: If it wasn't, how could they make MULE-HIDE so much tougher than any other roofing?

Is one of your rooms a forgotten catch-all? Clean it up and make it over into an attractive and useful part of your home. We can give you some good help on the job.

Antioch Retains Tournament Championship

SEQUOITS BEAT BENSENVILLE IN FINALS, 33-17

Is Fourth Consecutive Tourney Victory for Local Basketeers

TEAM IS LIGHTEST IN HISTORY

That winning the tournament championship of the Northwest Conference is an old story for Antioch Township High school cagers was proved Saturday night, when, for the fourth consecutive time, they delved into the limelight by ringing up a score of 33 as against Bensenville's 17 points in the final game of the 1930 tournament held in the final game of the night at the new Libertyville gym before a large ultra enthusiastic crowd.

Mastne, Cremin Main Offense Cogs
Howard Mastne was the main cog in the offense of Antioch in the final game, caging five field goals and six free tosses to lead the scoring with 16 points. Cremin, center, was next with 9 points. Schoppe was the ace of the losers with 4 field goals and a lone gratis shot. Coach W. A. Johnson of Bensenville had his cagers working hard throughout, but they were no match for the winners. At the end of the first half the score was 11 to 6 in Antioch's favor.

Locals Earn Way to Finals
With the beginning of the tourney Thursday night, the elimination process was rapid. The preliminary was staged at Arlington Heights Thursday when Libertyville nosed out Warren by a count of 19 to 16, while Heights put an end to Palatine's tournament hopes by the same score, 19-16.

Scene Moves to Antioch
Hostilities were renewed Friday night when the scenes of action changed to the Antioch gym for the Ela-Libertyville and Wauconda-Antioch games, while further elimination contests were being featured at Bensenville between Barrington and Leyden and Heights and Bensenville.

The Ela-Libertyville tilt resulted in a score of 29-22 in favor of Ela. Libertyville apparently had decided that defeating Ela was going to be an easy stunt, due, perhaps, to the fact that Antioch's second team defeated Ela there last week. Libertyville was outclassed from the start, the first period ending 16-4 in favor of its opponent. During the second half, however, Libertyville succeeded in closing the gap, but in a few minutes Ela again came into the limelight.

Reed Shows Sagacity
Overflowing with enthusiasm, the crowd could hardly wait for the Wauconda-Antioch fracas, scheduled for 8:30. Reed's men, always dangerous, when victory means much, were all set to go. This tilt, which resulted in a score of 34-22 in favor of Antioch, was slow and it took no particular over-exertion to win it. Much sagacity, however, was shown on the part of Coach Reed when he substituted Hanke, Brogan, King, and Boeh for his first men and then again put the regulars on the floor prior to the conclusion of the tilt. During the course of the Wauconda-Antioch game it was announced on the floor that Barrington had walloped Leyden by a count of 18-24, in order to let the local cagers know with whom they would have to play Saturday afternoon. Although Leyden threatened for some time to win the game, the issue was decided in the opposite direction when Barrington's running guard made several long shots.

Arlington lost to Bensenville in a hard-fought contest at Barrington by a score of 22-23.

Bensenville Wins
The participants in the semi-finals held at Libertyville Saturday afternoon were the winners in the four Friday night games, Ela vs. Bensenville and Antioch vs. Barrington. The Ela-Bensenville game was a very listless one, due perhaps to the fact that both teams had played hard games the night before. Although the game was a close one throughout, there was not much display of enthusiasm. The count was 12-17 in favor of Bensenville.

The first half of the Antioch-Barrington contest ended in a deadlock, the score being 7-7. The feature of the half was several open shots missed by Antioch. The last period, however, saw the Sequoits open up their driving game and from this point on, the issue was not in doubt. Both teams seemed very tired, but spectators were inclined to believe

SEQUOITS—ANTIOCH TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TEAM—1930

Lower Row—Hoffman, Fuchs, Mastne, McNeil, Cremin, Turk, Brogan.

LEADS TEAM TO TOURNAMENT VICTORY

Winning a basketball tournament is a feat. Emerging victors from such a grueling test four consecutive times is a greater feat—but winning this year with the lightest team in the Northwest conference, and the lightest Antioch team ever participating in the tourney, is a super-feat.

Great credit is due Coach G. G. Reed and his squad of lightweighters for retaining the Northwest Conference tournament championship. What the local lads lack in size is more than made up in lightning-like speed, sharp wits and the generalship of Coach Reed.

Surprise plays, unusual formations, quick substitutions disconcerting to opponents, are all on the local coach's repertoire; and the team is in there trying every second of the time. Effort of this kind must mean victory, for it has landed Coach Reed's team at the top of the heap in an unusually hard-fought tournament series.

COACH G. G. REED

ANTIOCH FELLOW IS CAPTAIN OF ALL-STAR MYTHICAL TEAM

More honor was thrust upon Antioch when a committee consisting of tournament officials and high school principals selected Cremin as captain and also forward of the all-star mythical team, and Mastne, forward and McNeil, guard. The other fellows who won the distinction of being members of this team are: Diedrich, center, Arlington; Schoppe, center, Bensenville; Frolich, guard, Ela; Gutnick, forward, Bensenville; and Clinge, guard, Barrington.

that Antioch was just stalling in order to be in good shape for the evening tilt. Practically the entire second team played during the last five minutes.

Antioch Brings Home the Bacon
Saturday night in the new Libertyville High school gym the stage was all set, and the spectators were all astir, because it was then that the final and most important game of the tournament was to be played. It was then that either Antioch or Bensenville was to prove itself the champion of the tournament. The local fellows must have been in a haze of enchantment when the score of 17-33 in their favor was called. Hearts thudded; it was all over; Antioch Township High school team had won the much sought after honor.

The consolation game that night was played between the two losers of the afternoon game, Ela and Barrington, the former winning over the latter by a score of 11-13, and incidentally grabbing third place.

Antioch Awarded Trophy, Ball
Following the tournament proper Saturday night, Principal Underbrink of Libertyville presented the four winners with awards, Antioch getting the large trophy and one of the basketballs used during the tourney; Bensenville was awarded a trophy and a ball; and Ela and Barrington each a ball. In his presentation speech, the Principal complimented members of the conference on their excellent sportsmanship, mentioning the fact that Chief Official A. L. Click had remarked that this was the first tournament in which technical fouls were not called on players for poor sportsmanship.

Here's how they lined up for the championship game:

PAUL FERRIS IS IN HORSESHOE CONTEST

The following item was clipped from a recent issue of the Melbourne Times-Journal, Melbourne, Florida:
"On Thursday morning at ten o'clock there was a champion game of horseshoe pitching called to order by the west side horseshoe club back of the Times printing office, and the team was made up of Mr. Joe Labdon and Mr. Fred Ringe, against Mr. H. D. Long and Mr. P. M. Ferris, and the two first named won by the score of 3 to 2."

BOXING FANS ALL SET FOR BIG SHOW AT PALACE FRIDAY

Some of the Country's Best All-Star Amateurs To Be In Ring

Boxing fans are all set for the big boxing show to be staged at the Antioch Palace Friday night, when an all-star card will be presented. Promoter Richard Macek, who has conducted the only successful boxing bouts in Lake county, will continue to act as matchmaker. George (Jabber) Young, Chicago's most popular referee, will act as the third official. This will be the first show to be staged in the local arena since it was closed last November. Promoter Macek has made every effort to bring to Antioch some of the best amateurs in the country.

Heavy Weights in Windup

Walter Capel, 190 pound husky scrapper from Milwaukee, will be featured in the windup event with Joe Risko, of Belle Plaine, who also hits the 190 mark. Since both of these boys are reputed to be fast, they are sure to put up a fight that will be well worth watching.

In the semi-windup Eddie Garlow, Kenosha, will be matched with Wm. Rivers, Lightweight champion of Mexico, and Howard Craft, well known Grayslake fighter, with Jack Lazar, Belle Plaine. The card for the preliminaries follows:

1. Johnny Hughes, Kenosha, vs. Joe Spravka, Belle Plaine.

2. Frank Schneider, Waukegan, vs. Joe Roberts, Kenosha.
3. Jimmy Sago, Waukegan, vs. Bill Upgard, Belle Plaine.
4. Bud Sellar, Libertyville, vs. Jack Wilson, Belle Plaine.

SEQUOITS TO MEET LIB. AND GURNEE ON HOME FLOOR

Two of the biggest basketball games of the season so far as Antioch is concerned will be played with Libertyville and Gurnee Friday and Monday night at Antioch.

Libertyville is the only conference team that has won from Antioch and a game with its squad is always a hard fought affair and the seating capacity in the gym is sure to be taxed to capacity. Among the special features which will be presented will be the initial public appearance of the municipal band.

Gurnee will invade the local warriors' camp on Monday night with the intention of getting revenge for a defeat handed it earlier in the season. The rivalry with Warren is probably keener than with any other school, and this in itself will probably produce a hot battle. Gurnee has developed rapidly during the last two weeks and Coach Kelton can always be depended upon to spring a bag full of surprises.

The high school honor roll for the first semester is as follows:

Five Nineties: Homer Edwards, Dorothy Hughes, Lillian Wells.

Four Nineties: Marie Shede, Pauline Shede, Helen Simonsen, Billy Brook, Hazel Hawkins, Lillian Vykruta.

Three Nineties: Harold Kennedy, Marguerite Kufalk, Ruth McCorkle, Ruth Nixon, Ward Edwards, Jasper McCormack, Dorothy Runyard, June Allner, Harold Nelson, Joe Pachay.

"FIRST AND ONLY MEDICINE THAT DID ANY GOOD"

New Konjola Brings Quick
And Thorough Relief
From Stubborn
Ailments

MRS. FRED MAW

"Konjola is the first and only medicine that did any good in my stubborn case," said Mrs. Fred Maw, 411 Sherman street, Joliet, Illinois. "Stomach trouble caused me much suffering for years. Gas bloating and pains followed every meal. Constipation and kidney trouble were other sources of misery to me. My back ached continually, and as medicine failed to help me, I became nervous and in a general weakened condition."

"I read and heard a great deal about Konjola and finally determined to try it. Well, Konjola is the medicine I should have had in the first place. Soon after starting the treatment digestion was restored; my kidneys and bowels were stimulated, and I felt like a different person. To Konjola, the master medicine, I owe the splendid health I now enjoy."

Konjola is sold in Antioch at B. H. Reeves' drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—adv.

Federal Highway Aid Increase

Illinois is likely to get a huge cut of the $50,000,000 annual increase in appropriation for Federal aid highway construction that was voted by Congress last week. In line with the Hoover plan for greater building activity the new legislation provides for $125,000,000 a year for the next three fiscal years instead of $75,000,000 as at present. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, Illinois received nearly six million dollars from this source. With available funds increased by the State gas tax, it is estimated that an even larger amount may be secured next year.

More House Committees

In addition to the House committee memberships already noted in this News there are many other prominent places held by Illinois Congressmen in the permanent organization of that body. Denison is near the top of the powerful Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, which has charge of all transportation legislation, including inland waterways. And he is chairman of two important subcommittees of that group—on Panama Canal and on Bridges. Arnold is a member of Appropriations, Doyle is Agriculture, and Sabath on Rules. DePriest has a place on Indian Affairs, Invalid Pensions and Enrolled Bills. Igoe also is a member of three groups—Labor, Indian Affairs and Expenditures in Executive Departments. Ramey has Roads, and Immigration and Naturalization. Irwin is on the Territories and Reid is on District of Columbia, Revision of the Laws, and Merchant Marine and Fisheries. Denison also represents the Mississippi Valley States on the Steering Committee of the majority party in the House. This group maps the legislative program and seeks to carry through the President's wishes. It has seven members besides the Speaker and the floor leader.

Dry Bureau Shift Approved

The President's bill to transfer all dry law enforcement agencies from the Treasury to Justice Department was reported favorably out of House Committee on Expenditures last week, just 16 days after President Hoover asked Congress to make the change. Though a violent storm of debate is said to await the bill on the House floor, in all probability the measure will pass that body. Numerous other bills for prohibition enforcement have been introduced in the House since the Wickersham committee reported. Several of these provide distinctions in prosecution and penalty between slight and casual offences and major offences, which is not done in the Jones-Stalker law.

Tariff End in Sight

The end of the long Senate debate on tariff rates is in sight. But this does not mean that the Bill is nearly ready to be sent to the President, for even after the hundreds of individual amendments are disposed of in the Senate there must inevitably be a great fight in the conference when differences between House and Senate duties are adjusted. For instance, last week the Senate voted to put hides and leather and shoes back on the free list from which they had been lifted by the House to impose varying degrees of duty. And, in general, the Senate raised duties on agricultural products and reduced those on many other industries to the level of existing law, in line with the Republican platform and President Hoover's special message.

Restore The Woodlot

Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, suggests small scale reforestation. It might not be a bad idea to restore woodlots to farms if States can be induced to exempt them from taxation. As Legge suggests, the "woods" furnished shade for the livestock in summer and shelter in winter, posts for fences and firewood for the house, besides reducing grain production and raising the value of the farm.

Bills For Highway Bridges

The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce last week reported favorably on bills authorizing the State to build two highway bridges in Illinois. Both bills were introduced by Congressman Johnson. One provides for a bridge over the Rock River at Prophetstown and the other, over the Pecatonica at Freeport. The group also has before it three bills by Sprout giving Illinois consent to bridge the Little Calumet river in Cook county on Halsted street near 145th Street and on Ashland near 134th and near 140th street.

Coast Guard Academy Exams

Competitive examinations for appointment of cadets to the U. S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., have been announced for June 18-20. This is an opportunity for young men between 18 and 22 to complete their education at government expense and become commissioned officers in the Coast Guard. Cadets are trained and educated at Academy and each summer are taken on an extended practice cruise, receiving the same pay and allowances as midshipmen in the Navy. Upon graduation a cadet is eligible to be commissioned as ensign. High school graduates are required to take a written examination in mathematics, English and history. Full information may be secured from the Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, Washington, D. C.

Outlook Service Commended

Pointing out that planting and breeding operations should rest on best possible size-up of the market outlook at home and abroad for a year or more to come, the Federal Farm Board commends the Department of Agriculture Outlook Service to the careful consideration of farmers.

National Aid For World's Fair

In pursuance to the President's proclamation the State Department has instructed its diplomatic representatives in foreign countries to invite the governments to participate in the Chicago World's Fair of 1933.

Foreign Service Changes

Three Illinois career men were affected by recent changes in the American Foreign Service. Fayette J. Flexer of Reddick, formerly American vice consul at Torreon, Mexico, was assigned third secretary to embassy at Havana, Cuba. Christian Gross of Chicago has been raised from third to second secretary of legation at Bern, Switzerland, and Earl Wilbert Eaton of Robinson, serving temporarily as vice consul at Guaymas, Mexico, is assigned vice consul at Mazatlan, Mexico.

WILMOT PIRATES BEAT NORTH CHICAGO TEAM BY SCORE OF 38-37

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kruckman Entertain at 500 Saturday Night

The Wilmot Pirates defeated the strong Community Five from North Chicago in an overtime game 38-37 at the Wilmot gym Sunday afternoon. Gilbert Frank was easily the star of the game with 25 points.

The Pirates second team won over Ever Green Park 34-21. McDougall's star playing was the big feature of this game with fourteen points to his credit.

The Pirates have their usual heavy schedule playing the Quick Jewellers at St. James gym in Kenosha Tuesday night; Williams Bay at the Wilmot gym Friday night; and Sunday afternoon the Delavan team comes to the local gym. Delavan has an excellent team; last year they were in the semi-finals in the state tournament.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kruckman entertained for the 500 club Saturday night. Six tables of cards were played, prizes going to Mrs. Eugene McDougall and Mrs. Alfred Reynolds. Consolation went to Mrs. Ray Bufton and Paul Ganzlin. A two-course luncheon was served at midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bufton have invited the club to meet at their home next Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harm and Mrs. Herman Frank spent Thursday in Burlington with Mrs. John Grabow and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harm.

Wm. Harm and daughter, Amy, motored to Kenosha Saturday. Benice Harm returned home with them for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kramer gave a dinner party Thursday evening for the members of the high school faculty and Mrs. M. Schnurr.

Mrs. A. C. Stoen and daughter, Ruth, motored to Waukegan last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cook of Judith Gap, Montana.

Guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John Sutcliffe included Mrs. C. Draper and children from Evergreen Park, Grace Sutcliffe and Mrs. Chas. Sutcliffe and Miss Farnum from Oak Park, and the members of the basketball squad from Ever Green Park.

Mrs. Frank Elbert entertained fifteen little folks Saturday afternoon in honor of the fifth birthday of her daughter, Nelva. Two tables of Bunco were played and prizes were awarded Rhoda Frank and Dwain Elbert. Lunch was served.

Mrs. James Carey entertained at two tables of bridge last Monday evening. Mrs. Frank Kruckman entertained this week Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cole, who are spending the winter months at Richmond, were guests for a day last week of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Loftus.

The Union Free High school has joined the State Oratorical association and, commencing with the second semester, the students are starting oratorical work. Each student in school will be required to give a three minute oration or declamation. After the preliminary contests, sixteen of the best contestants will be selected to enter the semi finals. The eight best of this group will contest at a public hearing some time in April to select the winner for the state contest.

The basketball squad beat Palmyra Friday night at the gym 28-12 and thus gained second place in the South Eastern Wisconsin conference. Bernhoff, Rasch, and Hanson were high scorers. Eleven men were used during the game, some of these having become eligible to play at the beginning of the second semester.

At the preliminary game that night the freshman defeated the sophomore team 24-23. Friday night the boys are to play the Williams Bay High school team at Wilmot. February 12, they go to Waterford for a contest with that team.

The regular P. T. A. business meeting will be held at the gym Tuesday, February 11.

Friday, February 17, at 3:00 p. m., the Toxin Anti toxin treatment for protection from diphtheria will be given by Dr. Becker to all children attending grade schools and all preschool children over six months of age, with the parents consent. The treatment consists of a dose given each week for three weeks. The cost is $1.00 per child for the three doses. The school authorities want as many children as possible treated as it is a community proposition as well as an individual. Any information relative to the treatment can be supplied by Miss Ruby Bice or Miss Olive Hope. The work will be done under the direction of the county nurse, Miss Sigrid Jorgenson.

DOES YO' LOVE ME, OR IS I JES DREAMIN'? IT WON'T BE LONG NOW---FEBRUARY 14TH!

Does yo' luv me, or is I jes dreamin'?—conceited? You betcha, look who's my valentine—let's take the "plunge", sweetheart—baby, yo' sho' does play havoc wit mah blood pressure—oh, you little red hot weenie, be my valentine—I'm your meal ticket—et cetera, et cetera—these are the sentiments that lovers all over the country will be writing this week and next, and oh, my won't those who get them be thrilled—maybe. From now until February 14th, the days will be filled with a haze of enchantment for those who are affected with the glamour of burning ardor. Poor old St. Valentine probably never dreamed that 1660 years from the day he suffered martyrdom, lovers would still be sending precious messages to each other in remembrance of him!

Dates Back To Roman Times

In ancient Rome, it was the custom to hold an annual celebration during the month of February, at which time various activities added to the merriment of the occasion. One of the means of entertainment was placing the names of young women in a box to be drawn out by the young men. After the Christian religion was introduced in Rome, church authorities tried to have this celebration abandoned, but were not successful; therefore, accepting the customary event, they modified it by substituting the names of saints in the box and each person drew out a name which was to represent one's saint for the year. No one knows when or how the custom became introduced into northwestern Europe. It was widespread at an early period, especially in England, Scotland, and France. St. Valentine, himself, was a bishop of Rome during the third century, suffering martyrdom February 14, 270. From that time the February festival became centered around this date, being associated thereafter, as it had been before, with good cheer and good fellowship and since St. Valentine's martyrdom, the day has borne his name.

Cupid Reigned in England, Scotland

In England and Scotland, the sentiment centering around Cupid, became a common feature of the anniversary, this being youths' method of showing good will toward each other. It became the custom for young men and young women to assemble on the eve of St. Valentine and inscribe the names of young men and women of their acquaintance on slips of paper. These were placed in a receptacle and the names drawn out by lottery, each person drawing the name of the opposite sex. This drawing indicated who should be one's valentine for the ensuing year.

Each one, besides having secured for himself a valentine, became, by the universality of the custom, some other person's valentine; but Mission, a traveler of the early part of the 18th century, said: "The man stuck closer to the valentine that had fallen to him than to her to whom he had fallen". The make believe engagements that followed often led to real ones, for during an entire year, the man was supposed to remain bound to his valentine. At one period it was customary for both the young men and young women to send each other presents, though later the obligations were restricted to the men. During the 15th century this form of amusement was very popular among the upper classes, especially at the European courts.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Granite

Granite, one of nature's earliest formed crystallized rocks, resulted from great heat, and was once in a molten state. It weighs about 167 pounds per cubic foot and withstands pressure all the way from 5,000 to 20,000 pounds to the square inch. It contains mica, quartz, and feldspar.

Greater Beauty - Finer Performance

Never has a Chevrolet car won greater praise for its appearance than the new Chevrolet Six. Its new Fisher bodies reveal in every detail the artistry that has made the Fisher name famous throughout the motor car world. In beauty of line and color, in balance and harmony of design, they represent one of the greatest style triumphs in Fisher history. And the promise of this exterior beauty is more than fulfilled when you look inside the car. Upholsteries are richer and more durable. The instrument panel carries a new and more attractive grouping of the control instruments. Seats are wider and deeper. In fact, not a single feature has been overlooked that would add to the comfort and convenience of both driver and passengers.

Gold Star Mothers Offered Free Trip to Europe by Congress

The Congress of the United States has passed an act to enable the mothers and widows of deceased soldiers, sailors and marines of the American forces now interred in cemeteries of Europe to make a pilgrimage to these cemeteries.

The dates set for these pilgrimages is during the period from May 1, 1930, to October 31, 1930.

It is the duty of the officers of each post to convey this information to the Gold Star mothers and widows who would be entitled to this pilgrimage. All expenses from and to their homes, including an approximate two weeks' stay in Europe, will be paid by the United States.

Mancel Talcott of Waukegan, has complete information on this pilgrimage and will be glad to furnish all data if advised of the names and addresses of those interested in making the trip.

Mr. Talcott, who is graves registration officer of the American Legion for Lake county, has a complete list of all deceased veterans from Illinois buried in cemeteries in Europe. The list was prepared by the Quartermaster General of the Army at the request of Congressman Carl R. Chindblom. Another list of next of kin is now being prepared.

No Solution to Hospital Congestion, Is Claim of Service Officer

An acute situation has developed, in connection with the need of hospitalization of veterans of this area, says Monty Rasmussen, Lake county service officer of the American Legion. This is causing the Service Department a great deal of trouble, worry and concern as there seems to be no immediate solution of the congestion. All hospitals in this area are filled to the maximum with a great number of men on the waiting list. Applications for hospitalization are now being handled as rapidly as possible, preference being given to

Vets Must Claim Compensation Not Later Than April 6th, 1930

The World War Veterans Act as amended, provides that all claims for compensation must be filed prior to April 6, 1930. This is covered under Section No. 209 of the act. Section No. 206 of the same act provides that evidence in support of claims must be filed by April 6, 1930. Legislation is being prepared by the Legion during this session of Congress that will strike out the limitations on both sections, which of course is highly desirable.

Citizenship and Patriotism

THE WORLD WAR again proved to all nations the intense patriotism that dwells in the heart of every American. There is an increasing appreciation of the rights of citizenship on the part of American citizens, though the records show that the majority of towns and cities are lacking in the spirit of citizenship in local affairs and elections.

THE CRYING NEED IN OUR COMMUNITY LIFE IS THAT EVERY CITIZEN BECOME AN ACTIVE CITIZEN; FOR A COMMUNITY CAN RISE NO HIGHER THAN ITS CITIZENSHIP.

Many residents are not registered, probably not one in three so-called citizens vote in primaries, in school or judicial elections. The vote is generally small in local elections. In other words, many of us are not "good" citizens—we do not exercise our franchise of citizenship.

A community cannot be well governed—cannot hope to have an efficient and economical administration of many of the most vital aspects of its life, if its citizens are not actively civic minded. More than one-half the taxes are raised for local distribution. Yet, normally, more people vote in national and state elections than vote in local elections.

Is that good business?

The least a citizen, man or woman, can do is to show an intelligent interest in public affairs, both national and local. The chief direct responsibility for the majority of us is to attain citizenship, establish residence, register, vote, serve on juries, be loyal and strive for an American standard of living.

Our town officials welcome awakened interest in civic affairs. It means much to our business men and property owners. All residents benefit by a renewed surge of civic energy.

As "two heads are better than one" so are "many heads better than a few" in the matter of local citizenship and patriotism. Remember, a town can be no better than its individual citizens.

Local citizenship and patriotism are deserving of a large amount of consideration on the part of all of us. In these we can SHOW the superiority of

His Turn
Saying grace at the table is still customary in the home of the M-s, as the following story illustrates: At a dinner recently, when the guests were seated, the host turned to the gentleman on his right and said, "Mr. B., you will return thanks."

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take. Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

"Mr. Tyler would like a word with your husband."

Hugh rose, his jaw set.

"I'll talk to him outside," he said.

The door closed behind him, and we looked at each other, startled, uneasy.

Nobody said anything. We were all thinking of the conversation going on in the corridor.

The tense silence lasted for perhaps five minutes. Then the door was re-opened, and Hugh entered.

"Hilary wants to talk terms," he announced. "In the circumstances, I didn't feel that we could afford to overlook any chance, and I have arranged that four of us will meet four of his crowd at Hilary's house at three this afternoon."

"I don't trust the dog," I said immediately. "Why go to Hilary's house? Why couldn't he talk here?"

"He said the only way he could prove that he has a certain trick up his sleeve would be for us to go there. He also pointed out that we need have no fear of treachery, as we only needed to leave word behind us where we were going. Hilary seemed in a reasonable frame of mind. He said his crowd are sick of the whole business, that they as well as we are wasting time, and that we might as well compromise. What I am after is to feel out the enemy's position."

None of us could think up a valid reason for objecting to Hugh's strategy, so it was agreed that he, Vernon King, Nikka, and myself should keep the appointment at Hilary's house. Betty said she would take Watkins and go for a sail in the Curlew, and we all approved, for her plan because we considered her safest on the water.

After luncheon we escorted Betty and Watkins to the Man-of-war dock, saw them off and then walked through Pera to Hilary's house in the Rue Midhat Pasha. As we approached, it from the corner, a big automobile halted in front of the entrance, and Hilary, himself, appeared in the doorway, ushering out a stout personage, whose frayed coat, fez and predatory visage proclaimed the Turkish official. The man glanced at us, merely looking into his machine and drove away.

We passed through a square hall into a salon which was a bizarre combination of rickety French period furniture and priceless, solid oriental stuff. Hilary, Helene and Serge Vassilievich were lounging on a couch, smoking cigarettes and talking in low tones. The men rose as we came in. Hilary, with a swagger, the Russian with a frown that presently focussed on my face—it seemed he had never forgotten or forgiven the beating I gave him in the gunroom at Chesby.

Helene lay back against a pile of cushions, languorously at ease, beautiful as a tigress, a pleasant smile curving her faultless lips. Other than the smile, she made no move to greet us.

"Sit down, won't you?" said Hilary, automatically taking charge. "Glad you came. Did they see your friend Hilary? Don't take my word for it, you chaps, but that man was Yonissouf Mahkoul Pasha, who is popularly known in this part of the world as 'The Grand Vizier's Jackal.' You probably do not see why you should be interested in him and his presence here today. The fact is, however, that his visit to this house was timed so that you should have an opportunity to see him. We particularly desired you to see him, knowing that you—ah—"

—he smiled agreeably—"might be inclined to doubt the veracity of what we said to you."

"To cut a long story short, Mahkoul Pasha is a particular pal of our fellow club-member, Hilary. I don't mind telling you in on it that they've been in several deals together. Now, we owe you a bit on account. Last night, for instance, but I gather that you yourselves aren't able to ride clear on the strength of it."

He paused, and Hugh caught him up. "You have no right to suppose that," Hugh retorted sharply. "We aren't talking terms. You are."

"I notice you aren't refusing to discuss terms," said Hilary with a glint in his eye. The fact is, you are stumped just as much as we are. We are plugging around the course, and neither one of us can jockey a horse clear of the field. It's a—nonsense. Gets nobody anywhere. Sensible thing to do is to lay cards on the table, and make a deal."

"Put down your hand," said Hugh evenly.

"The treasure is somewhere around Tokulji's house," answered Hilary promptly. "That's certain. To get to it you've got to get into Tokulji's house. What's more, you've got to be able to stay awhile in Tokulji's house. And you can't do it. You haven't got a chance of doing it! But let's suppose a miracle happened, and you found the treasure. He dropped his cigarette, and leaned forward, driving his clenched fist into his palm to emphasize every word. "Still, we've got you stopped. How? Hilary's friend, Mahkoul Pasha. We've made arrangements with him, whereby in the event that we give up hope of any better deal, we denounce you and your treasure to him. He will then convey the information to the Imperial government, as I for our assistance, he and we will be presented with a stipulated percentage of the treasure, as recovered."

He sat back on the couch, and crossed his knees.

"Those are good cards, providing they are played right," Hugh admitted. "But how is the Imperial government going to secure the treasure's location from us?"

"If they don't secure the information, nevertheless you won't get the treasure. To be quite plain with you, our plan, in the event of the contingency I have outlined, would be to give you an opportunity to get to the treasure before calling in the government."

"Yes, that would be the way to do it," said Hugh, nodding impersonally. "What's your proposition?"

"Seventy-five per cent to us, twenty-five per cent to you."

Hugh laughed at Hilary's offer.

"I thought you wanted to talk business," he jeered.

Helene tossed away her cigarette. "You're playing it too fine, Monty," she remarked. "Will you talk on a fifty-fifty basis, Lord Chesby?"

Hugh turned to her.

"I don't know," he said frankly. "I want to think it over. I'll admit that by calling in the Turkish government, as that he had a perfect right to enjoy our departure. We felt that we had come off distinctly second best.

"Score for them," remarked Hugh, as we shook the dust of the Rue Midhat Pasha from our shoes. "We're cheated!"

"They won't do it," I objected. "And if they did, it wouldn't get them anywhere."

"You're right," assented Hugh. "But there's the delay. This is expensive, Jack, and we can't hang on forever. If we could wear them out, they'd be forced to give in."

"You are both wrong!" exclaimed Nikka energetically. "You must remember that you are in Constantinople. Things don't happen here as they do in Europe."

"Constantinople is in Europe," I objected. "And promptly felt like the fool the remark demonstrated me to be."

Nikka favored me with a withering glance of contempt.

"We are not talking in terms of geography, but of human nature," he said. "This is the Orient. You ought to realize that, Jack, after what you have seen with me. And in the Orient, and especially in Turkey, such a crafty deal as Hilary made with Mahkoul Pasha would not excite any interest, much less condemnation. It's the regular thing."

"You forget the allied high commissions," interrupted King.

"No, I don't. They can go only just so far. Their position is delicate enough, without imperiling their prestige by interfering in what would be strictly a question of Turkish internal government. They'd know that a windfall such as this treasure would be used simply to further Pan-Islamic intrigue and bolster the coffers of the Nationalist government at Angora. But for that very reason they wouldn't interfere. I tell you, it would be the height of bad luck for us if the struggle for the treasure took on a political tinge. It would be fatal. We might as well pack up and go home."

"Guess you're right," assented Hugh thoughtfully. "It looks as though we were pocketed."

"What puzzles me is why they didn't try something like this before," continued Nikka. "I fancy they wanted to be very sure of their man first."

"Surely, they won't have told him!" protested King.

"Who? Mahkoul? Oh, no. They're too wise. No, they're simply explained to him the general proposition and arranged tentative terms. They won't trust him any further than they have to."

"Is it your idea that we've got to accept their offer?" asked Hugh.

"It is my idea that we've got to use our wits, and act quickly," said Nikka.

"But you can't trust them," I cried. "Helene as much as told you so. We'd get the stuff out—"

"If it's there," Hugh reminded me. "If it's there, then, and they would think nothing of jumping us, either by force or by some d—d trick."

"They might even stage a fake hold-up on the part of a government agency," Nikka added cheerfully.

"In plain language, their proposition is: heads we win, tails you lose," said Hugh.

"Yes, supposing you permit them to take the lead from your hands," agreed Nikka. "However, I am reminded of a memorable address I was once privileged to listen to as a soldier of the Legion. A general named Foch read it a citation, and then told us how to go on winning more. 'I have noticed,' he said, 'that it is the soldier who attacks who wins battles. The Initiative is the price of victory. Never permit your foe to assume the initiative. Attack! Always attack!'

"True," assented Hugh. "And we've been able to stall their gang so far by taking the initiative."

"But if we can't?" inquired King.

"Optimism is all right, but—" interrupted Nikka. "We have our backs to the wall. This is the time to fight. If fighting will get us anywhere."

"The Fact is You Are Stumped Just as Much as We Are."

you could stall me—and yourselves. But how can I trust you? What guarantees can you give us?"

"No guarantees we could give you would be binding," she answered with an insolent smile. "What's more, we don't have to give guarantees. We hold the whip-hand. You've no alternative but to trust us. As to thinking it over—" she swung a glance at Hilary, who nodded—"come back tomorrow. We'll give you that long."

"I'll take as long as I choose," returned Hugh, with a flash of temper. "And understand me, I mean what I say when I tell you that any compromise between us will be based on what we consider satisfactory guarantees."

Hilary yawned lazily.

"Don't like it, do you? Doesn't feel comfortable to be spured. Well, suit yourselves. So far as we are concerned, remember, we'd rather come to terms with you. We stand to get more out of you than from the Turkish government. But if you try to trick us, we won't be beyond denouncing you, even at the cost of losing any share at all."

"That goes," added Helene de Cespedes, reaching her little body erect, all pretense of languor gone. "You people are backing a losing game. The cards are stacked against you. You lose, no matter what you do."

"We'll see about that," said Hugh, rising, a spot of red on each cheek, none the sign of the white-hot anger that seethed within him.

"Must you go?" asked Hilary, his smile resumed. "An' volr, then, Hilary, will you see them out?"

Our Backs to the Wall

Tragedy and Comedy in Alchemists' Dreams

Tragedy in England, comedy in Germany ended the researches of alchemists for the means of turning baser metals into gold and silver. In England James Price claimed to have found a way of causing the conversion. He even demonstrated his experiment before a large group of celebrities, including King George III. When requested by the Royal Academy, however, to exhibit his method to them, he showed a disinclination to do so. Finally, however, he was persuaded. When only three members of the academy arrived on the day appointed, Price swallowed a quantity of the strongest poison known at that time, and died.

A contemporary theologian, named Semler, in Germany, placed a so-called punance, the Salt of Life, in a jar with a stone. He later found flakes of gold on the stone. He entered into a series of debates with famous chemists of the day, but failed to convince them that he had analyzed the substance and found it to be gold. They analyzed both some and found it to be a metal called "Dutch Metal." Upon investigation it was found that a servant of Semler's placed the gold each day on the stone to please his master. In the servant's absence the wife purchased the cheaper Dutch metal and spent the remainder for brandy. Semler admitted his mistake and the matter was a standing joke for many years.—Detroit News.

The Poppy

According to mythology, the poppy was created by Ceres in order that she might forget grief in the sleep it produced. The Romans regarded the flower as a symbol of death and dedicated it to Somnus, god of sleep.

Superstition looks upon the poppies that bloom on battlefields as the blood of the slain soldiers. A strange fact about the flower is that it does not agree with other blooms, and if placed in a bouquet with them will either wilt itself or cause them to wilt, or

"If it will!" echoed Hugh.

"That's what we have to decide," said Nikka. "You can't work out a problem like this in the street."

We walked the remainder of the distance to the hotel at a breakneck gait. As we entered the lobby one of the clerks came from the office and accosted Hugh.

"Your messenger would not wait, milord," he said. "Mees King had not returned. Indeed, she has not yet returned."

"My messenger?" repeated Hugh, with a startled look at us.

"Yes, milord. He said he must see her. When I told him she had gone out he left your letter for her, with instructions that I present it as soon as she came in."

Hugh's face creased into grim lines. "Very well. As long as she has not yet returned, I will take it back."

"The clerk went to the mail desk, and plucked an envelope from Betty's letter box. Hugh thanked him, and turned it over in his hand. It was addressed in an extraordinarily scrawling hand to "Miss King." In the lower left-hand corner was written: "By messenger."

"But it looks nothing like your handwriting," exclaimed King. "I am at a loss to comprehend how persons so adroit as our opponents have demonstrated themselves to be capable of such a shallow trick."

"Well, see," returned Hugh brusquely, slitting the envelope.

It held a single sheet of paper. On it was written in the same scrawling hand:

Dear Betty:

I've broken my arm, which explains this abominable writing. I never could do anything with my left hand. Don't worry. I shall be at it in no time. Can you come with the bearer, or if that is too convenient, with Watkins to the house in Sokaki Masver? It's important. Can't write any more.

Hugh.

P. S. The others are all right. The bearer can't wait.

"Can you beat that?" I gasped.

"Exceedingly ingenious," murmured King. "Dear me, how fortunate it was that we returned when we did."

"We mustn't leave anything to chance, though," said Nikka quickly. "You can't tell what other steps they may have taken to trap her. We had better go down to the dock at once."

Hugh glanced at the clock.

"Yes, she'd hardly be back yet," he muttered. "One moment. I'll leave word at the desk that she is not to go out, no matter what message she may receive, until we return."

He rejoined us at the door, and we all entered a taxi which Nikka had impounded. Nobody said anything, but while we were jolting into Galata Hugh produced his automatic and made sure it contained a full clip. At the dock there was no sign of the Curlew, and the late afternoon sunlight failed to reveal her stably little hull amongst the shipping in the Golden Horn. None of the dock attendants had seen the launch or anything of Betty or Watkins since we had waved goodbye to them before three o'clock.

We waited a while, thinking they might show up, but after six o'clock King became nervous and persuaded us to return to the hotel. There, too, there was no word of them, and we began to worry in earnest.

We taxied to the dock a second time. The Curlew was nowhere to be seen.

"Perhaps it would be advisable to hire a boat and search for them in the Marmora," suggested King. "Their engine may have broken down."

"We had better split our forces," Nikka objected.

"Engine trouble would never bother Betty, Hugh said. "Still, I don't like it."

"We are probably worrying about nothing," I said. "After all, it was a blessing in disguise that she stayed out so late. It insured against her being caught by that note in case we hadn't intercepted it."

"I'm not interested in 'if' and 'had,'" snapped Hugh. "I don't like this delay. Those devils of 'Toutous' are capable of having an extra trick in reserve."

"I vote we go back to the hotel," proposed Nikka; "maybe I can pick up one of my gypsies. We could start them out on the trail."

Nikka's suggestion did not make anybody any happier. It indicated that he, like the rest of us, was commencing to take the situation more seriously than he cared to admit openly. But we climbed into the smelly taxi for the fourth time, and were jounced up to Pera. The hotel people regarded us with some amazement when Vernon King again inquired for his daughter. No, she had not returned. Was anything wrong?

King hesitated, looked at us. It was hard to know what to say. Something might be wrong. And yet the chance was there that the only thing wrong was a cranky motor. We didn't want publicity. We couldn't afford to attract unnecessary attention. Our party was sufficiently conspicuous, as it was, and was taken for granted and let alone because it included an American millionaire archeologist and an English milord, both of whom, by all the rules of the Orient, were naturally assumed to be harmless lunatics.

"No," he answered at length. "I think not. My daughter has a reliable servant with her. I am simply anxious for her return."

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK
A. M., Sc. D.

Director of Public Health Education,
State of Pennsylvania.

Aye! Aye!

TWO thousand school children were some time ago subjected to an eye examination. It was not a selected group. Yet 45 per cent of them required glasses for their school work. Moreover, 32 per cent of the 55 per cent who made a normal reading of the examination chart were discovered to be far-sighted when controlled by "drops."

Which seems to bear out the statement made by authorities that 50 per cent of impaired eyesight can be prevented. It appears that some one is to blame.

Children do not like to wear glasses. No one does. But it is the duty of those responsible for the young people's future to have their eyes examined by a reputable specialist and abide by his advice, if any attention is required.

When it becomes necessary for a child to wear glasses it certainly is better for him to do so during a few years of school life than to have permanently defective vision later on in life.

Even though the specialist may find nothing wrong at the time, such subsequent conditions as frowning, watery eyes, blurred vision, eye ache, or persistent headache are, singly or in combination, indicative that trouble has developed. Don't delay having it remedied.

And while on this eye subject, don't neglect your own. Seriously impaired sight is too big a penalty to pay for such carelessness. When it comes to this advice for your children and yourself step up and sincerely exclaim, "Aye! Aye!" and mean it.

Act Your Age

THE other day a man only fifty-six years old stepped up to his golf ball, knocked it 200 yards and dropped dead. This unfortunate gentleman had been sitting in his office all winter and when the first heavy day came along he sought the golf course. According to his own statement he was a "place of up for lost time" by playing golf on the first day. He was in honor of one tenth century—saw the light of day in ever!

And this log hut in Kentucky 121 years ago. The blood red, the pure white, and the true blue were displayed in true significance of America's greatest man, Abraham Lincoln. Didn't it make your heart thud as you walked along Main street yesterday and saw Old Glory waving on high? Didn't it give you renewed spirit when you thought to yourself, "Today is the birthday of one who belongs to the ages and of one who understood the aches and pains and throbbings of the human heart?"

The unfurling of the Stars and Stripes was not the only way that Antioch people observed the birthday of Abraham Lincoln. The banks were closed in his honor. Lincoln day programs were presented at the schools, and no doubt there were many who took at least a few minutes sometime during the day to meditate on the significance of February 12.

Local Netters Lick Lake Villa 31 to 22; Wilson Now Manager

Rising to great heights, the Antioch Netters handed the Lake Villa team the first defeat of the year in a 31-22 count on the home floor Monday night.

Antioch started fast and with Nixon and Wilson making eight baskets, led at the half, 18-4. During the second half, the locals eased up, but Simpson's mighty guarding handily helped by Hughes and Wertz held Lake Villa down. It was a great victory for the climax of the season.

Since Nixon and Ewers left Wednesday for California, Wilson will take over the duties of manager and will try to build a winning team.

Wins 14 First and 5 Second Prizes Out of 20 Entries in Miami County Fair Baking Contest

Credits Success To New-Type Flour

"I want to thank you for your splendid Gold Medal 'Kitchen-tested' Flour. At my last appearance at the Miami County Fair I made twenty entries in the baked goods department, out of which I won fourteen first and five second prizes. I have not entered anything since—thought it best to give others a chance."—Mrs. J. H. Hartman.

This New-Type Flour Brings Baking Success To Thousands of Women

THOUSANDS of women now know how to get baking success every time—prize cakes and pastries, bread and biscuits—there's no "guess work" about perfect results.

They use a new-type flour for all baking purposes—GOLD MEDAL "Kitchen-tested" Flour—that simplifies baking remarkably and banishes the cause of most baking failures.

Failures, experts found, were mostly due to the fact that 2 sacks of the same flour often acted differently, even with the same recipe...

It was not uniform in oven action.

So now all GOLD MEDAL Flour is "Kitchen-tested" before it comes to you. As each batch comes through the mill it is tested by actual baking—bread, cakes, biscuits, the under-tries—in an oven just like yours.

Only flour which is plain Monday when perfect way eye-atte slate of county with the exception of-Probate Judge, was named by the Democratic central committee in session in the supervisors' room at the court house.

Try to Nominate Republican

For probate judge, Edward White, Lake Villa, was named, but White declined the honor. Committeemen then turned their attention to John R. Bills, Waukegan attorney, but Bills informed the nominating committee that he was a republican in politics. So with the single exception of the probate judge job the Democratic ticket is full and bubbling over—with enthusiasm.

Zodiac Signs 'Right'

The wheel of fortune is turning, the time is ripe, and it looks like a democratic year, standard bearers of that political faith believe.

The ticket as outlined is as follows:

Frank Behringer, Waukegan, public utility employee, is to be the candidate for state representative. He resided in McHenry county for a number of years prior to coming to Waukegan about 10 years ago.

Attorney Joseph J. J. of North Chicago, candidate for county judge. He was a former city attorney of North Chicago and was a leader in the Smith for president campaign in 1928.

Joseph Daly, Waukegan merchant, candidate for county clerk.

Thomas Sexton, union plumber, and a Waukegan resident, candidate for probate clerk. He was candidate for assistant supervisor several years ago in Waukegan township and made a good run.

Yager to Run

Herbert Yager, of Waukegan, candidate for sheriff. He is a union carpenter and was a candidate for sheriff four years ago on the republican ticket. Yager has voted the democratic ticket, he explained, each time a candidate has been in the field but has been forced to run as a republican through lack of a party ticket.

Mrs. Frances Moody, of Highland Park, candidate for county superintendent of schools. She is the wife of James Moody, a real estate dealer in Highland Park.

Peter Duffy, of Deerfield, a banker, candidate for county treasurer. He has been a resident in that section of the county all his life.

Signs Look Favorable

Leaders in the party stated that signs for a democratic year looked favorable. Mr. Duffy declared that he believed some of the districts around Deerfield that are normally republican would swing to the democratic column.

Chairman Edward White of Fox Lake pointed out that the ticket was not a barrier to other candidates filing. In fact, he urged this step and explained that no party endorsement could be made until after the primary.

HEAVIES TO CLASH IN PALACE WINDUP BOUT FRIDAY NIGHT

Farmer-Risko Scrap Looks Good; Beyer and Sames Also on Card

Don Farmer, Kenosha heavyweight flash, and Joe Risko, the "rubber" boy from Belle Plaine Athletic club, are booked as the principals in the windup of Dick Macek's amateur boxing show at the Antioch Palace Friday night. Supporting the windup fracas between the heavies, an all star card of six preliminaries has been arranged.

George Sames in Prelim.
George Sames, Antioch battler, will appear in the opening bout against Eddie Upgard, Belle Plaine, 118 pounder.

H. Galliger, also Belle Plaine, takes on Paul Liberty, Kenosha, in the second preliminary, while Harold Floyd, Kenosha, and Ted Haffer, Belle Plaine, will entertain in the third act. Johnnie Hughes, popular Kenosha leather pusher, and J. Lazer, Belle Plaine A. C., are slated for the fourth bout at 126 pounds.

Beyer Battles Stella
Buddy Beyer, Twin Lakes mauler, returns to the local ring tomorrow night to oppose Marko Stella, a Kenosha boxer reputed to be a hard hitter and fast.

The semi-windup will see Jimmy Fay, McHenry, and Leon Kraus, Belle Plaine, putting on the middle-weight attraction of the show. It looks like a good show Friday night.

Craft Wins Over Lazar

After trawling and covering for the greater part of two rounds in his battle with Jack Lazar in the windup attraction at the Palace last Friday night, Howard Craft rallied and took the decision from the Chicago lad after four rounds of fast fighting. The Grayslake boy found it hard to get going against the rushing tactics of Lazar who seemed to hit Howard with everything he had in the opening rounds, but by playing a waiting and heady game, Craft seemed to get help to his opponent and had little trouble in landing enough points to even the score and cop the decision in the extra session.

His Turn

Saying grace at the table is still customary in the home of the M-s, as the following story illustrates: At a dinner recently, when the guests were seated, the host turned to the gentleman on his right and said, "Mr. B., you will return thanks."

Billy, age five, remonstrated emphatically. "Call on me, daddy! Call on me! I haven't prayed for a week."

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescriptional product.

Brown Pasha, A. H. Pie, the big corner, a big In front of the entrance, himself, appeared in a ushing out a stout personage, whose frock coat, fez and predatory glance proclaimed the Turkish official. The man scarcely glanced at us, merely climbed into his machine and drove away.

We passed through a square hall into a salon which was a bizarre combination of rickety French period furniture and priceless, solid oriental stuff. Hilmy, Helene and Serge Vassilievich were lounging on a couch, smoking cigarettes and talking in low tones. The men rose as we came in. Hilmy with a swagger, the Russian with a frown that presently focussed on my face—it seemed he had never forgotten or forgiven the beating I gave him in the gunroom at Chesby.

Helene lay back against a pile of cushions, languorously at ease, beautiful as a tigress, a pleasant smile curving her faultless lips. Other than the smile, she made no move to greet us. "Sit down, won't you?" said Hilmy, automatically taking charge. "Glad you came. Did they see your friend Hilmi? Don't take my word for it, you chaps, but that man was Youssef Mahkoul Pasha, who is popularly known in this part of the world as 'The Grand Vizier's Jackal.' You probably do not see why you should be interested in him and his presence here today. The fact is, however, that his visit to this house was timed so that you should have an opportunity to see him. We particularly desired you to see him, knowing that you—ah—"

"He smiled agreeably—'might be inclined to doubt the veracity of whatever we said to you."

"To cut a long story short, Mahkoul Pasha is a particular pal of our fellow club-member, Hilmi. I don't mind telling you in on it that they've been in several deals together. Now, we owe you a bit on account. Last night, for instance, but I gather that you yourselves aren't able to ride clear on the strength of it."

He paused, and Hugh caught him up. "You have no right to suppose that," Hugh retorted sharply. "We aren't talking terms. You are."

"I notice you aren't refusing to discuss terms," said Hilmy with a glint in his eye. The fact is, you are stumped just as much as we are. We are plugging around the course, and neither one of us can jockey a horse clear of the field. It's d-n nonsense. Gets nobody anywhere. Sensible thing to do is to lay cards on the table, and make a deal."

"Put down your hand," said Hugh evenly.

"The treasure is somewhere around Tokaji's house," answered Hilmy promptly. "That's certain. To get to it you've got to get into Tokaji's house. What's more, you've got to be able to stay awhile in Tokaji's house. And you can't do it. You haven't got a chance of doing it! But let's suppose a miracle happened, and you found the chance. He dropped his cigarette, and leaned forward driving his clenched fist into his palm to emphasize every word. "Still, we've got you stopped. How? Hilmi's friend, Mahkoul Pasha. We've made arrangements with him, whereby in the event that we give up hope of any better deal, we denounce you and your treasure to him. He will then convey the information to the Imperial government, and in return for his public service and for our assistance, he and we will be presented with a stipulated percentage of the treasure, as recovered."

He sat back on the couch, and crossed his knees.

"No guarantees we could give you would be binding," she answered with an insolent smile. "What's more, we don't have to give guarantees. We hold the whip-hand. You've no alternative but to trust us. As to thinking it over—" she threw a glance at Hilmy, who nodded—"come back tomorrow. We'll give you that long."

"I'll take as long as I choose," returned Hugh, with a flash of temper. "And understand me, I mean what I say when I tell you that any compromise between us will be based on what we consider satisfactory guarantees."

Hilmy yawned lazily. "Don't like it, do you? Doesn't feel comfortable to be spurred. Well, suit yourselves. So far as we are concerned, remember, we'd rather come to terms with you. We stand to get more out of you than from the Turkish government. But if you try to trick us, we won't be beyond denouncing you, even at the cost of losing any share at all."

"That goes," added Helene de Cespedes, rearing, her lithe body erect, all pretense of languor gone. "You people are backing a losing game. The cards are stacked against you. You lose, no matter what you do."

"We'll see about that," said Hugh, rising, a spot of red on each cheek home the one sign of the white-hot anger that seethed within him.

"Must you go?" asked Hilmy, his jaw resumed. "Au voir, then, Hilmi, will you see them out?"

Tragedy and Comedy in Alchemists' Dreams

Tragedy in England, comedy in Germany ended the researches of alchemists for the means of turning base metals into gold and silver. In England James Price claimed to have found a way of causing the conversion. He even demonstrated his experiment before a large group of celebrities, including King George III. When requested by the Royal academy, however, to exhibit his method to them, he showed a disinclination to do so. Finally, however, he was persuaded. When only three members of the academy arrived on the day appointed, Price swallowed a quantity of the strongest poison known at that time, and died.

A contemporary theologian, named Semler, in Germany, placed a so-called panacea, the Salt of Life, in a jar with a stone. He later found flakes of gold on the stone. He entered into a series of debates with famous chemists of the day, but failed to convince them that he had analyzed the substance and found it to be gold. They analyzed some and found it to be a metal called "Dutch Metal." Upon investigation it was found that a servant of Semler's placed the gold each day on the stone to please his master. In the servant's absence the wife purchased the cheaper Dutch metal and spent the remainder for brandy. Semler admitted his mistake and the matter was a standing joke for many years.—Detroit News.

The Poppy

According to mythology, the poppy was created by Ceres in order that she might forget grief in the sleep it produced. The Romans regarded the flower as a symbol of death and dedicated it to Somnus, god of sleep.

Superstition looks upon the poppies that bloom on battlefields as the blood of the slain soldiers. A strange fact about the flower is that it does not agree with other blooms, and if placed in a bouquet with them will either wilt itself or cause them to wilt, or both.
